

Should Families Brand Kids Early?

The one-page version of a longer essay.

WHY THIS MATTERS

Branding a young athlete early is not inherently good or bad. It is a decision about control, records, and consent. This one-pager gives families a simple lens: build evidence, not hype, and keep the family in control of every account and asset.

WHAT'S INSIDE

- Build documentation of results - times, tests, highlights - before chasing followers
- Keep account ownership and passwords with the parent or guardian
- Put written consent in place before posting minors (see the Act 810 checklist)
- Avoid 'manager' or 'agent' labels unless someone is genuinely registered and licensed for that role

ABOUT JAYLEN SINEGAL

Jaylen Sinegal is an executive brand strategist and media IP consultant in Louisiana. He teaches athlete and family brand architecture, NIL and music licensing to schools, and media copyright and facility audits. He is Chief Brand Officer of FlightTime Athletics LLC and builds the Find a Producer director for Louisiana music.

A STANDING PROMISE

Education, not representation. Jaylen Sinegal provides brand strategy, media education, and IP consulting. He is not a licensed sports agent and does not solicit, negotiate, or procure athletic contracts, sponsorships, or employment. He does not sell, license, or represent music. Families, schools, and buyers keep direct control of their own assets.

This resource is educational material meant to help you ask better questions. It is not legal, tax, financial, or investment advice, and it is not a contract. Louisiana law, platform terms, and school rules change. Confirm the current rules for your situation and have a qualified attorney review final documents whenever money, minors, or contracts are involved.

If this resource references an organization, platform, or law (including Louisiana Act 810 and La. R.S. 51:2500 et seq.), it is a plain-English overview, not the authoritative text. Read the actual statutes and terms before relying on any checklist.
